Mass Physical Examination To Be Held Wednesday In Circleville

Draft board headquarters announced Tuesday that 1,324 men between ages of 20 and 45 registered for military service during the last three days.

The number falls nearly 500 short of the total state headquarters estimated would register in Pickaway county. Of the registration 1,267 were local men and their registration forms will be retained at the local draft board office where they will be serial numbered and order numbered following the national lottery scheduled for next month. Fifty seven registrants were from out of the district and their cards will be mailed to other boards.

Registration Monday ran considerably under the number anticipated and from 7 to 9 p. m. only a few signed up.

The draft board said the registration was conducted smoothly and without congestion and members of the board expressed their appreciation to deputy registrars who assisted during Saturday, Sunday and Monday. All who helped with the registration volunteered their services and served without compensation.

Figures Permitted

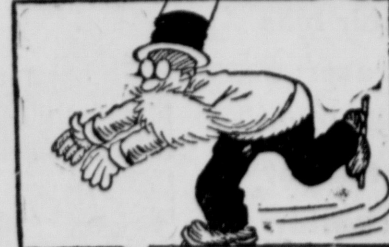

Announcing of local figures came as the result of a ruling from the war department permitting the publication of state and local draft registration totals. Still prohibited, however, is publication of the national total of men between 20 and 45 involved in the registration. The revision likewise failed to affect an existing ban against disclosure of the quota of men involved in any call to military service, although names of men leaving for camp may be published locally.

National Selective Service headquarters announced plans to end most deferments for eye and teeth defects by relaxation of physical standards. Local draft boards have been notified of the new eye and teeth standards and ordered to reclassify all class 1-B and 4-F men deferred because of eye or teeth defects.

All those who can eat and digest Army "chow" will be accepted for active service in all branches of the Army, it was announced. Previously an inductee had to have a minimum of six masticating and six incisor teeth, "all of which were opposed."

Japanese Move Near Rangoon

RANGOON, Feb. 17—Thronging of natives and whites moved westward out of Rangoon today, taking their possessions with them, as the Japanese hordes attacking from the east pressed closer.

British military communiques indicated the Japanese invading Burma from Thailand have pushed 30 miles closer to Rangoon, until they are now within 75 miles of this city of 500,000, the southern terminus of the Burma road supply line to China.

COUNTER THRUST AGAINST TOKYO BEING PLANNED

ADELAIDE, Feb. 17—Possibility of a counter-offensive action in the Pacific at a time that will surprise the Japanese was forecast today by Sir Keith Murdoch, managing director of the Melbourne Herald.

"We are not entitled to be downcast nor to hope too much," he said.

"We won't see the end of the first phase—Japanese exploitation of their sea and air supremacy—until we are equipped for the essential second phase, the counter-offensive.

"I believe it is possible that this counter-offensive will begin at a time that will surprise the Japanese. If there is true cooperation between Australia, Britain, America and the Dutch the blows of our forces will soon start resounding."

VETERAN FOREMAN HELD FOR SABOTAGING BELTS

DETROIT, Feb. 17—In the first such arrest reported by the Detroit division of the FBI, Martin Helmsma, 60, today was held under $10,000 bond on charges that he sabotaged war production at a Pontiac foundry by causing interferences with conveyor belts.

The plant foreman who has been employed by the foundry for 25 years stood mute at his arraignment before U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd and a plea of innocent was entered for him.

The FBI charged he damaged iron castings in the foundry by placing steel pinions in them.

In the war's first attack on territory within the shadow of a Western Hemisphere continent, the Dutch West Indies, an axis submarine shelled the American-garrisoned Aruba island, site of a gigantic U. S.-owned oil refinery (above) and torpedoed four tankers off the shores of the nearby island of Curacao, below.

Much Contraband Goods In Possession Of Aliens; 13 More Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17—The FBI's campaign against Japanese espionage and sabotage continued in full sweep up and down the Pacific coast today, with three unloaded aerial bombs being the most important haul in a succession of spectacular raids which uncovered large quantities of other contraband.

The San Francisco bureau of the FBI indicated that the series of arrests was one of the most important so far staged.

This time, according to Nat Pieper, agent in charge, the raiders, 25 G-men and 50 police officers, moved inland to Sacramento, in the vicinity of Mather field, air training center, and picked up 13 "potentially dangerous aliens," including former Japanese army and navy officers and a university graduate who "owes certain duties to Japan."

At the same time, other FBI agents "mopped up" in the Monterey area following last week's extensive raids, arresting four more Japanese, two of them members of an organization whose members expected to serve with the Japanese army.

Other developments in the alien situation along the coast saw thousands of aliens moving away from restricted zones and more getting ready to move by the final deadline of February 24.

Pieper said of the bomb casings seized: "They were about three feet in length. While they were unloaded, it would have been a simple matter to load them."

JURORS SWORN TO TRY VIERECK FOR ESPIONAGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—A jury of ten men and two women was sworn in today for the federal district court trial of George Sylvester Viereck, German propagandist, charged with violating the foreign agent's registration act.

Two members of the jury served on the panel that last week convicted Laura Ingalls, famous aviatrix, for willful failure to register under the same act as a Nazi agent.

The German-born Viereck had registered under the act as a propagandist connected with the German Library of Information, but was indicted for alleged failure to supply details of his activities.

ICKES DECLARES SUBMARINE RAID LOSSES HEAVY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Declaring that tankers are being sunk faster than they are being built, Secretary of Interior Ickes today told Congress that the "bold" axis thrusts against this nation's oil supply line, particularly off Venezuela, "are indeed ominous."

At the same time he warned that oil stocks on the east coast of the United States are now 5,705,000 barrels below last year, but added that he hoped the situation could be remedied "without causing hardship or inconvenience to the people."

CHURCHILL REFUSES TO SURRENDER PART OF DEFENSE DUTIES

Minister Willing To Test Strength In Commons; London Says Nazi Ships Hurt

LONDON, Feb. 17—With a prediction of "new and terrible" losses in the Far East, Prime Minister Winston Churchill today again stoutly defended his conduct of the war, announced a sweeping inquiry into the Scharnhorst-Gneisenau channel escape and flatly refused to surrender part of his powers by appointing a minister of defense.

The Far Eastern situation is so perilous, Churchill told a clamoring, querulous House of Commons, that discussion of it at present would give important information to the enemy. He freely admitted that new "forfeits" will be added to the heavy losses already suffered.

Churchill promised full debate next week and called on the House to throw him out of office if it decides he and his government are incompetent.

LONDON, Feb. 17—Prime Minister Winston Churchill refused flatly today to appoint a separate minister of defense and thereby turn over to anyone else part of the power he now wields.

Churchill's refusal to relinquish the defense portfolio, which he holds in addition to the premiership, was revealed by British authorities.

They declared, however, that Churchill is "quite ready" to test the opinion of the House of Commons on this subject in view of claims that there is widespread demand in Britain for separation of the premiership and defense ministry.

M'ARTHUR FLAYS JAPS FOR RAID ON ISLE VILLAGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—With enemy action ominously increasing, Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported to the war department that the Japanese had mercilessly attacked a defenseless Philippine refugee village, killing 18 women and five children and wounding 22 others.

The raid occurred on the village of Cababalan and was conducted by Japanese bombers. It came as enemy aircraft and heavy batteries set the tempo for what was believed to be the curtain raiser for an all-out assault against Gen. MacArthur and his Philippine defenders.

Even as MacArthur reported that the enemy was bringing up artillery reinforcements, heavy enemy batteries on the Cavite shore opened up again on American-held harbor fortifications but damage and casualties were said to be small.

Significantly, the latest communique reported that "enemy air activity is increasing," indicating that the Japanese may have brought up reinforcement no longer needed in Malaya since the fall of Singapore.

GUARDS FIRE ON LIGHT FLASHERS ON WEST COAST

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Feb. 17—State guardsmen opened fire on unidentified persons flashing light signals from a cliff above Santa Barbara channel Sunday night, police revealed today.

Police reported that guardsmen said that the lights were flashed at regular intervals as if to signal craft at sea. The apparent signal senders escaped unharmed.

Light signals have been reported in the vicinity previously, police disclosed, but Sunday's encounter was the first time that guardsmen fired shots.

Australia Believes Move On Its Shores Near; Planes Seen In Timor Area

War shadows moved ever closer to the Western Hemisphere and to Australia today while in the Dutch East Indies the Japanese struck with bombing raids near the strategic island of Java, headquarters of the United Nations' high command.

American naval units in the Dutch West Indies were carrying out counter-action against axis submarines that shelled Aruba and torpedoed four tankers yesterday and at least one, possibly more, of the undersea craft were believed to have been destroyed.

But in the far Pacific, there appeared an obvious prelude to an all-out invasion attempt of the island of Java. Jap warplanes swooped low over several small islands in the Sunda strait between Java and Sumatra, dropping bombs and spraying the ground with machine-gun fire.

This dispatch was sent from an enemy country, whose motive in releasing news is likely to be propaganda. Axis claims should be credited only when confirmed by American or Allied sources.

BERLIN, Feb. 17—(By Official German Wireless)—The German navy today claimed credit for the submarine attack on the Dutch West Indies island of Aruba.

A communique said: "German submarines entered the Caribbean sea, sinking three tankers displacing a total of 17,400 tons off the island of Aruba and Curacao, where they shelled oil refineries and harbor establishments."

Between Java and Sumatra, dropping bombs and spraying the ground with machine-gun fire.

Australia was on the watch for an attempted Japanese aerial penetration of the mainland. The Australian radio interpreted arrival of Japanese warships in Singapore as forecasting extension of Japanese operations into the Indian ocean and probably against Australia and New Guinea. Japanese planes have been active over the sea of Timor near Port Darwin on the northern Australian coast and yesterday bombed a United Nations convoy. The British radio said, however, that no casualties resulted from the bombing.

Submarine Peril Noted

Both North and South America were made aware of the submarine peril to territory in the Western Hemisphere as a result of the shellfire and torpedo attack delivered by axis undersea craft in the Dutch West Indies yesterday.

And American planes are maintaining a sharp patrol, ready to pounce on any remaining Nazi u-boats which took part in the war's first attack on territory along the eastern coast of the Americas.

Belief that at least one of the enemy submarines was sunk by American bombers was expressed by Gen. Frank M. Andrews, Caribbean defense commander, who was at Aruba during the Nazi raid and (Continued on Page Two)

The Far Eastern situation is so perilous, Churchill told a clamoring, querulous House of Commons, that discussion of it at present would give important information to the enemy. He freely admitted that new "forfeits" will be added to the heavy losses already suffered.

Churchill's refusal to relinquish the defense portfolio, which he holds in addition to the premiership, was revealed by British authorities.

They declared, however, that Churchill is "quite ready" to test the opinion of the House of Commons on this subject in view of claims that there is widespread demand in Britain for separation of the premiership and defense ministry.

Commenting on the escape of the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the cruiser Prinz Eugen from Brest, British authorities said 4,000 tons of bombs had been rained on Brest in bombing sorties in which the British lost 43 aircraft and 247 airmen.

An authoritative statement said the Nazi ships undoubtedly had been hit several times in these raids, and that the bombing became so serious the Germans were compelled to move the vessels.

3,299 Attacks Made

No less than 3,299 bombing sorties were made on Brest, the statement said.

It was argued the British were unable to have British battleships ready to intercept the German warships in the North Sea because "they would have been exposed to the same scale of air attack as the German ships at Brest."

The statement announced formally that an immediate and confidential inquiry has been launched into all circumstances surrounding escape of the German ships. Doubt was expressed, however, that results of this investigation can be published when it is completed.

The British statement claimed abandonment of Brest as a naval base by the Germans is "decidedly beneficial" to Britain.

"A threat to British convoys has been removed and a heavier scale of air attack on Germany is now possible," the statement said.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The new $32,000,000,000 war bill, approved by the House appropriations committee today, brings total direct military allocations since the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor to $81,000,000,000 or more than $1,100,000,000 a day for the 72 days this country has been at war.

Here's where it has gone: For general military purposes shortly after war started, $10,000,000,000.

For the Army air corps, $12,500,000,000.

For the Navy $26,500,000,000. For a war loan to China, $500,000,000.

to possess enough teeth—natural or artificial — to masticate the Army fare.

Regulation Quoted
The new draft regulation reads: "For general military service in all branches:

"Registrants who have no disqualifying physical defects except a lack of the required number of teeth as set forth in paragraph 31A, mobilization regulations 1-9, August 31, 1940, when, in the opinion of the examining physician, they are well nourished, of good musculature, are free of gross dental infections, and have sufficient teeth (natural or artificial) to subsist on the Army ration."

Eye requirements now read: "For general military service in all noncombatant branches:

"Registrants whose visual acuity is below 20-100 but not below 20-200 in each eye without glasses if correctable to 20-40 in each eye. (The actual possession of suitable glasses by an individual is not required for his acceptance under these standards.)"

In its memorandum to local boards, announcing these new army standards, national headquarters stated:

"It is, therefore, directed that all local boards reopen and consider anew the classification of all registrants heretofore classified in class 1-B or class 4-F by reason of deficiencies in teeth or eyesight."

Next scheduled event on the local draft board's calendar is a mass physical examination to be held in the American Legion rooms of Memorial hall Wednesday. Physical examinations will be preliminary and are being given to eliminate obvious physical rejects. Registrants who pass the local examination will be forwarded to the Army examining team in Columbus for final examination. Registrants who pass their physical examinations in Columbus will be ordered for induction within ten to sixty days after their final examinations.

Enlistments Permitted
The local board has been advised by state headquarters that it may grant permits for enlistment in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps or the Coast Guard. Registrants who wish to enlist in the Aviation Cadets do not need written release from their local board. However, the local board, advises that under no circumstances will it grant a permit for enlistment after a notice to report for final physical examination has been mailed.

At the same time, the state Selective Service headquarters of Col. Chester W. Goble announced that previous strict physical requirements, particularly those applying to the eyes and teeth, would be lowered to obtain enough men for the armed services, and that full reclassification of earlier registrants, especially those deferred on grounds of marital dependency, is under way.

Colonel Goble said that the review of 3-A men—those deferred for reasons of dependency—was begun a month or more ago and that some local boards which were lenient in the beginning may not be so now.

Necessity Vital
Deferment, Colonel Goble said, would be boiled down to actual necessity of a wife or other close relatives for support.

Between 65 and 70 percent of all Ohio registrants have been given 3-A classification. Those who lose their deferment under the review will still have the right of appeal.

FIRE HITS MANSFIELD CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

MANSFIELD, Feb. 17—On the same site where another church burned down 72 years ago, an early morning blaze of unknown origin today destroyed the 70-year old first Congregational church of Mansfield.

Firemen prevented the fire from spreading to a nearby apartment building and several private homes.

The church's 215-foot spire boasted the distinction of being the highest point in Ohio.

Damage to the church was estimated at $225,000, but ministers disclosed that fire insurance covered three-fourths of the loss.

Submarine Attack Brings War Closer To Shores Of Hemisphere

later returned to Balboa in the Canal Zone.

He said a large oil slick appeared on the surface of the water and bubbles arose after American bombers attacked the u-boat that fired shells at the Standard Oil company refinery at Aruba, garrisoned by United States troops.

"And we hope it sank," said the general.

Two Dead, 21 Missing

Two men were killed, 21 were missing and 18 were injured as a result of the Nazi attack which torpedoed and sank two small tankers off Aruba. A United States seagoing tanker was torpedoed, but not seriously damaged nearby and a fourth tanker was torpedoed and heavily damaged off Willemstad, Curacao.

No damage was caused by the shells hurled at the oil refinery at Aruba.

Authorities in Washington refused to comment on this new Nazi u-boat venture. But military experts in the national capital predicted a vigorous assault, similar in scope and ferocity to that which caused the fall of Singapore, by the Japanese in their campaign against Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Philippine defenses.

These sources, studying the two-week lull in large-scale enemy land attacks on the Bataan peninsula, said the Japs are evidently laying plans for what they hope will be the deciding battle of the Philippine conflict, now in its 11th week.

In Australia, the government took urgent new defense measures as the nation heard of Jap aerial operations over the Timor sea near Port Darwin, important base on the northern Australian coast.

Prime Minister John Curtin declared that under mobilization measures now being put into effect, "every human being in the country is at the service of the government to work for the defense of Australia."

Simultaneously, the fall of Singapore brought renewed and urgent demands for aid in the Pacific war theatre from an Australia that looked to the United States for more planes and tanks.

Thaion Lost
With Jap troops now less than 75 miles from Rangoon, throngs of residents began moving westward out of the capital of Burma. A British communique indicated that the Burmese city of Thaion, on the Martaban-Rangoon railway, is now in Japanese hands.

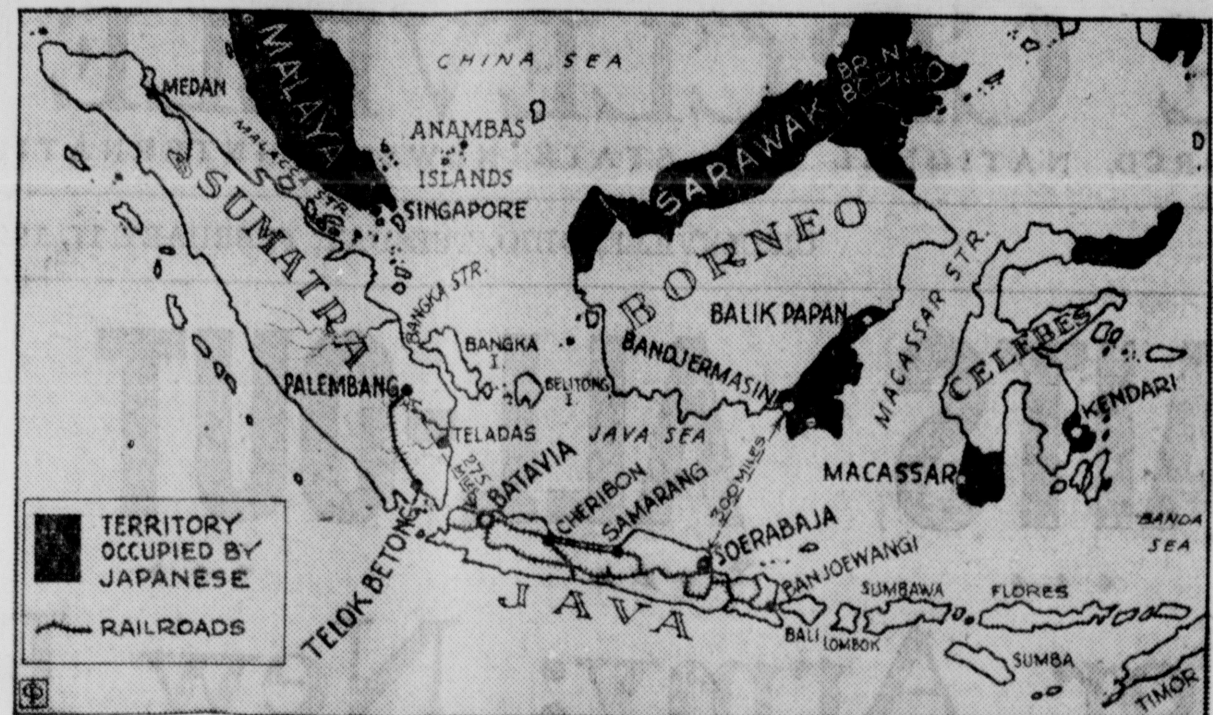

At Tokyo, Japanese Navy Minister Shimada boasted before the Diet that Nipponese naval operations cover the whole Pacific and extend even to the coast of the American mainland.

Brightest picture for the united nations still seemed to be on the snows of the Russian front, where Red army cavalrymen on the northwestern sector were declared to have recaptured 40 more towns and villages in the last few days.

All along the front the Soviets pressed relentlessly forward, rolling over fierce Nazi opposition.

SINGAPORE'S FALL TURNS JAPS' ATTENTION TO INDIES

Next all-out attack of the Japanese on the United Nations in the Far East already has gotten under way against Sumatra in the Netherlands East Indies, where the enemy has succeeded in occupying Palembang, the important oil center. The Dutch reported that American, British and Dutch planes bombed a Japanese convoy in the Bangka straits off Sumatra. The newest principal war arena in the Far East is shown on the above Central Press map.

COUNTY MAN, 43, FINED FOR SCRAP IRON THEFT

Columbus Adams, 43, Pickaway township, was fined $50 and costs by Mayor Ben H. Gordon Monday afternoon for the theft of 1,400 pounds of scrap iron from the Norfolk and Western railroad. He paid his fine and was released.

Charges against Adams were filed by G. C. Hunter, railway detective, who claimed the Pickaway township man had picked up approximately 1,400 pounds of railroad spikes and plates which he had sold for scrap in Chillicothe.

The spikes and plates had been left along the railroad by workers who were repairing tracks near Kingston.

of knives, flashlights, cartridges and "many important documents." The 13 designated as enemy aliens were booked as "dangerous" or as "possibly dangerous" aliens. Among them were several reserve officers of the Japanese army and navy. Thirty-five in all were arrested in the early raids, which were still progressing, and the remainder of those in custody were being questioned to determine their status.

Two of the bombs, authorities said, were discovered in the possession of T. Takahashi, reported to be widely known in the Japanese colonies of both Sacramento and Seattle, Wash. The raiders disclosed they also found numerous medals and several uniforms of the Japanese army and navy in Takahashi's possession.

Another of those in custody was Aski Okasaki, arrested near Mather field, training center for Army aviation cadets. Officers said he had searchlights and signal equipment. One of the raids turned up instruction books in code, and 77 rounds of ammunition. Also included in the haul by the federal agents were such contraband articles as cameras, binoculars, short wave radio sets and swords.

Masae Kitegawa, freight agent for the NYK steamship line and a graduate of the University of California, was quoted by agents as saying on his arrest: "My loyalty is with Japan." Seized also were Shoshi Oda, reserve officer in the Japanese army; Kiju Sato, who reportedly had access to weapons at the hotel where he was employed, and Kanuchi Katoka, elder in the Buddhist church and an officer of the Togo club, which authorities said is subsidized by the Tokyo government.

"Watch Those Bumps" if you want your tires to last.

Just to give you an idea... swinging a sledge hammer on a tire with all your might wouldn't do one-tenth the damage of backing into a curb, bumping over raised railroad tracks at high speed or hitting a hole in the road. So watch those bumps! Remember—with proper care you can get up to 50,000 miles from a set of tires. But a hard bump can ruin a tire at any mileage.

TWO MEN DEAD IN EXPLOSION AT WILMINGTON

Telephone And Telegraph
Lines In Clinton Area
Broken Down

A hole 24 feet in diameter and 15 feet deep Tuesday marked the site of a dynamite mixing plant in which two men were killed as they prepared charges for a large quarry near Melvin, nine miles east of Wilmington.

The explosion had such force that it was felt as far away as Circleville, Springfield, and Washington C. H. Windows in a schoolhouse at Sabina, a mile away, were smashed, causing dismissal of classes.

The explosion was observed in this city about 1:05 p. m. Tuesday. It appeared as a gust of wind, rattling windows and shaking doors. The force of the concussion was not great enough to cause any damage, but scores of townspeople and rural folk noticed the incident.

The victims of the blast were T. A. Richards, 60, of Melvin, and David Hatfield, 53, of Sabina, both of whom were working in the mixing plant of the Independent Explosive Company of Cleveland.

The men were mixing explosives for the C. C. Beam quarry. Force of the explosion broke telephone and telegraph lines of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads, each about a mile from the scene. Two automobiles parked outside the building were turned into junk.

State highway patrolmen said a few pieces of flesh and a sheepskin coat belonging to Richards were the only traces left of the two men. Two nearby powder magazines, in which several thousand pounds of dynamite were stored, were not affected by the blast.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

NO. 34 DEDUCTION FOR TAXES

In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed.

Taxes on real estate and personal property paid during the year 1941 are deductible. So-called taxes which are assessed against local benefits, such as streets, sidewalks, drainage, and other like improvements, are not deductible but are to be capitalized, as they tend to increase the value of the property and thus constitute cost of a permanent improvement. The Federal income tax may not be deducted. Income tax, however, paid to the state by an individual on his income is an allowable deduction in his Federal income tax return.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductible. Import or tariff duties paid to customs officers; and business, license, privilege, excise, and stamp taxes paid to internal revenue collectors are deductible as taxes, provided they are not added to and made a part of the expenses of the business or the cost of the articles of merchandise with respect to which they are paid, in which case they cannot be deducted separately as a tax. The purchaser may not deduct the Federal tax of 10 percent on the retail sale of jewelry, furs, and toilet preparations. The Federal tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof paid for admission to any place is deductible, provided an account has been kept by the taxpayer of the amount paid. Taxes on club dues are deductible by the member paying them. An individual may deduct the tax on his telephone conversations, radio messages, telegrams, and cables and on the rent of his safe-deposit box.

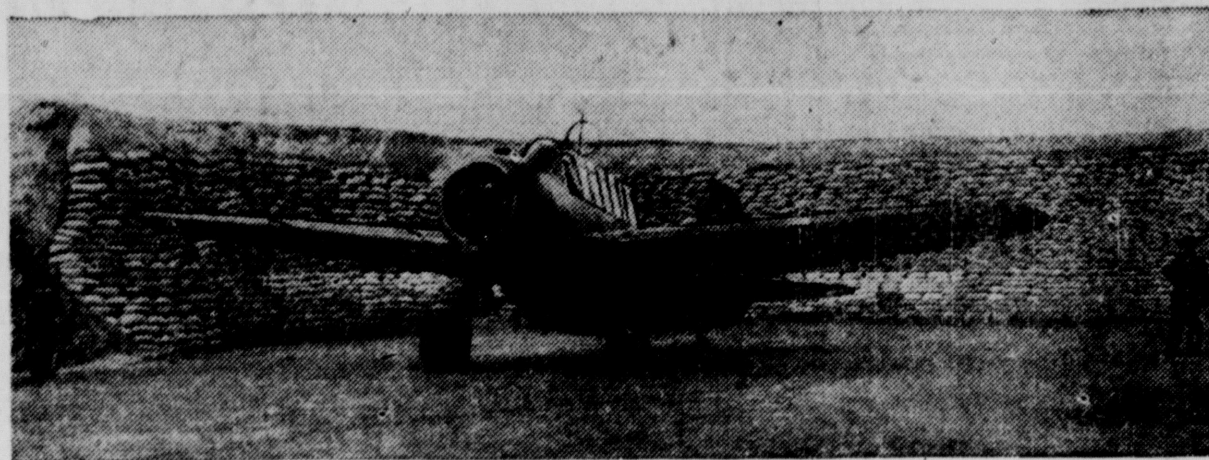

Unemployment compensation contributions required under a state law, if officially classified as taxes, are deductible as taxes and not as business expenses.

The excise taxes imposed upon employers by the Social Security Act, as amended, are deductible, but the tax imposed on employees by the Act is not deductible. If an employer pays such tax for the employees, the amount may be deducted by the employer as a business expense, and the employees are required to report as additional income in their Federal income tax returns the amounts of the tax so paid for them.

License fees exacted by a state or city upon certain businesses are deductible as taxes. Automobile license fees are ordinary taxes and deductible. Postage is not a tax and is not deductible.

Federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance, estate, legacy, or succession taxes are not deductible. The Federal taxes on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes and liquor are imposed upon the

RUSSIANS LIST SEVEN REASONS FOR AXIS LOSS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—Seven reasons why Hitler will lose the war were broadcast by Radio Kulbyshev and rebroadcast by the BBC today. The reasons are:

1. Hitler will lose the war because each day the allied naval strength increases.
2. Hitler will lose the war because the resources of America are inexhaustible.
3. Hitler will lose the war because Germany is fighting the greatest coalition of powers ever assembled.
4. Hitler will lose the war because the clamor of hate against the Nazi oppression is growing daily. The French, Dutch, Czechs, Belgians, Norwegians, Poles and Danes are showing through their acts of sabotage that they will never accept the Nazi yoke.
5. Hitler will lose the war because Germany is desperately short of manpower. Slave labor is imported from all occupied countries, while losses on the Russian front are ever increasing.
6. Hitler will lose the war because he inflicts the death penalty on all Germans who are brave enough to remember the agonizing days of 1918. Germany is not united while Russia has 200 million people breathing the breath of one purpose—the defeat of Hitler.
7. Hitler will lose the war because all mankind is fighting Germany.

NBC picked up the British broadcast.

manufacturer, producer, or importer, and are not deductible by the purchaser or consumer. Whether or not the gasoline tax, the use tax, or the sales tax levied by a state may be deducted by the individual purchaser depends upon the terms of the state law imposing the tax; consequently, the right to the deduction, as between purchaser and seller, varies in the different states.

SPEEDER, LIGHT RUNNER FINED IN CITY COURTS

Jack Smart of Portsmouth was fined $10 and costs in Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges' court Monday afternoon for speeding on Route 23 south of Circleville. He paid the fine and was released. Arrest was made by Patrolman Russell Stevenson who charged that Smart's rate of speed on wet pavement was dangerous to himself and other motorists.

Roy Nolan of Chillicothe posted a bond of $15 at police headquarters Tuesday at 3:45 for running a red light at Main and Court streets. He is scheduled to appear before Mayor Ben H. Gordon Tuesday at 7 p. m.

Paul L. Carruthers, 145 Montclair avenue, forfeited a $115 bond for drunken driving when he failed to appear in Mayor Gordon's court Monday at 7 p. m. He was arrested on North Court street Saturday night.

SERIES OF FIRES CAUSES TROUBLE IN OSLO REGION

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—The outbreak of a series of mysterious fires is worrying the Nazi-dominated rulers of Norway, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by CBS.

"An appeal has been broadcast to the Norwegian people to combat the fire danger," said BBC.

"The (Norwegian) broadcast revealed that since the new year the value of property damaged by fire amounts to 300,000 pounds ($1,250,000).

"The police are investigating the fires which occurred in Oslo on the day Quisling (Vidkun Quisling, president-premier of Norway) became president, and other fires which destroyed material seized by the Germans," said BBC.

In the same broadcast BBC said that Nazi authorities in Paris have ordered shot, one man for possessing arms and another on a charge of spying.

PERKINS READY TO LEAVE POST AS F.D.'S AIDE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — Reports that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will soon resign were current in high administration circles today.

While rumors of her retirement have periodically spread through the capitol, the fresh reports come from more responsible sources.

With the increasing importance of Sidney Hillman in the war-labor set-up and the action of President Roosevelt in naming an unofficial "labor cabinet," Miss Perkins' influence is said to be steadily declining in administration circles.

One usually well informed source predicted the resignation of Miss Perkins within two weeks. The reason given was that she is not being consulted on major problems by the White House and she feels that her usefulness in the department after more than eight years of service has ended.

The possibility that Miss Perkins might become administrator of the wage and hour law, a new deal law for which she long fought, was seen by some administration sources. Since the wage and hour office is being moved to New York, she could return to her home state to head the administration and would avoid stepping down to a lesser post in Washington.

As the first woman cabinet member, Miss Perkins has seen the most far-reaching labor legislation in history enacted in her eight years' service.

Miss Perkins, friends pointed out, could enter into private business as a labor consultant and probably earn much more than her cabinet salary.

TWO MEN DEAD IN EXPLOSION AT WILMINGTON

Only Small Traces Found Of Workmen Preparing Explosives

FORCE IS NOTICED HERE

Telephone And Telegraph Lines In Clinton Area Broken Down

A hole 24 feet in diameter and 15 feet deep Tuesday marked the site of a dynamite mixing plant in which two men were killed as they prepared charges for a large quarry near Melvin, nine miles east of Wilmington.

The explosion had such force that it was felt as far away as Circleville, Springfield, and Washington C. H. Windows in a schoolhouse at Sabina, a mile away, were smashed, causing dismissal of classes.

The explosion was observed in this city about 1:05 p. m. Tuesday. It appeared as a gust of wind, rattling windows and shaking doors. The force of the concussion was not great enough to cause any damage, but scores of townspeople and rural folk noticed the incident.

The victims of the blast were T. A. Richards, 60, of Melvin, and David Hatfield, 53, of Sabina, both of whom were working in the mixing plant of the Independent Explosive Company of Cleveland.

The men were mixing explosives for the C. C. Beam quarry. Force of the explosion broke telephone and telegraph lines of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads, each about a mile from the scene. Two automobiles parked outside the building were turned into junk.

State highway patrolmen said a few pieces of flesh and a sheepskin coat belonging to Richards were the only traces left of the two men. Two nearby powder magazines, in which several thousand pounds of dynamite were stored, were not affected by the blast.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

NO. 34 DEDUCTION FOR TAXES

In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed.

Taxes on real estate and personal property paid during the year 1941 are deductible. So-called taxes which are assessed against local benefits, such as streets, sidewalks, drainage, and other like improvements, are not deductible but are to be capitalized, as they tend to increase the value of the property and thus constitute cost of a permanent improvement. The Federal income tax may not be deducted. Income tax, however, paid to the state by an individual on his income is an allowable deduction in his Federal income tax return.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductible. Import or tariff duties paid to customs officers; and business, license, privilege, excise, and stamp taxes paid to internal revenue collectors are deductible as taxes, provided they are not added to and made a part of the expenses of the business or the cost of the articles of merchandise with respect to which they are paid, in which case they cannot be deducted separately as a tax. The purchaser may not deduct the Federal tax of 10 percent on the retail sale of jewelry, furs, and toilet preparations. The Federal tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof paid for admission to any place is deductible, provided an account has been kept by the taxpayer of the amount paid. Taxes on club dues are deductible by the member paying them. An individual may deduct the tax on his telephone conversations, radio messages, telegrams, and cables and on the rent of his safe-deposit box.

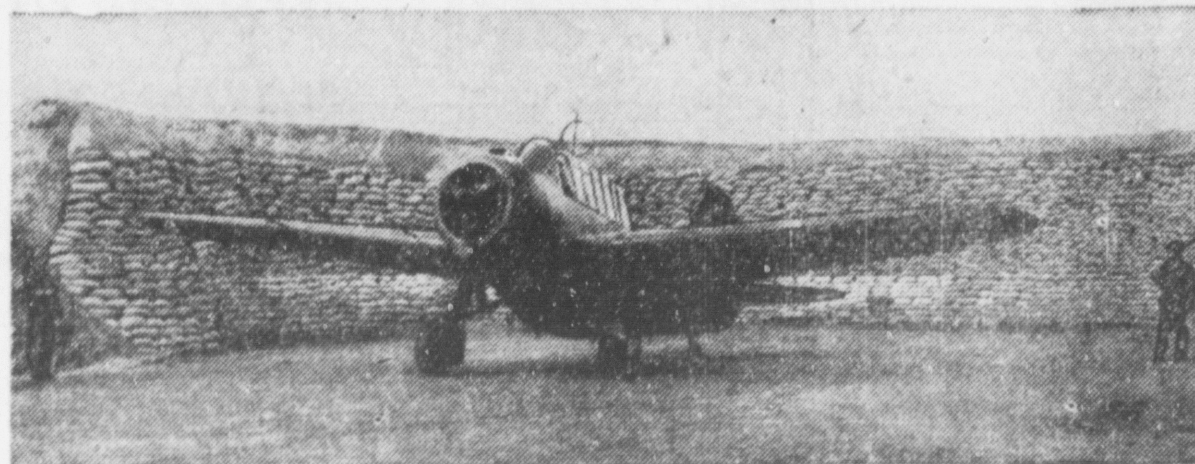

Unemployment compensation contributions required under a state law, if officially classified as taxes, are deductible as taxes and not as business expenses.

The excise taxes imposed upon employers by the Social Security Act, as amended, are deductible, but the tax imposed on employees by the Act is not deductible. If an employer pays such tax for the employees, the amount may be deducted by the employer as a business expense, and the employees are required to report as additional income in their Federal income tax returns the amounts of the tax so paid for them.

License fees exacted by a state or city upon certain businesses are deductible as taxes. Automobile license fees are ordinarily taxes and deductible. Postage is not a tax and is not deductible.

Federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance, estate, legacy, or succession taxes are not deductible. The Federal taxes on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes, and liquor are imposed upon the

RUSSIANS LIST SEVEN REASONS FOR AXIS LOSS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Seven reasons why Hitler will lose the war were broadcast by Radio Kibyshev and rebroadcast by the BBC today. The reasons are:

1. Hitler will lose the war because each day the allied naval strength increases.
2. Hitler will lose the war because the resources of America are inexhaustible.
3. Hitler will lose the war because Germany is fighting the greatest coalition of powers ever assembled.
4. Hitler will lose the war because the clamor of hate against the Nazi oppression is growing daily. The French, Dutch, Czechs, Belgians, Norwegians, Poles and Danes are showing through their acts of sabotage that they will never accept the Nazi yoke.
5. Hitler will lose the war because Germany is desperately short of manpower. Slave labor is imported from all occupied countries, while losses on the Russian front are ever increasing.
6. Hitler will lose the war because he inflicts the death penalty on all Germans who are brave enough to remember the agonizing days of 1918. Germany is not united while Russia has 200 million people breathing the breath of one purpose—the defeat of Hitler.
7. Hitler will lose the war because all mankind is fighting Germany.

NBC picked up the British broadcast.

The birthstone of the month of March is the bloodstone, which is a potent symbol of courage.

manufacturer, producer, or importer, and are not deductible by the purchaser or consumer. Whether or not the gasoline tax, the use tax, or the sales tax levied by a state may be deducted by the individual purchaser depends upon the terms of the state law imposing the tax; consequently, the right to the deduction, as between purchaser and seller, varies, in the different states.

SPEEDER, LIGHT RUNNER FINED IN CITY COURTS

Jack Smart of Portsmouth was fined $10 and costs in Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges' court Monday afternoon for speeding on Route 23 south of Circleville. He paid the fine and was released.

Arrest was made by Patrolman Russell Stevenson who charged that Smart's rate of speed on wet pavement was dangerous to himself and other motorists.

Roy Nolan of Chillicothe posted a bond of $15 at police headquarters Tuesday at 3:45 for running a red light at Main and Court streets. He is scheduled to appear before Mayor Ben H. Gordon Tuesday at 7 p. m.

Paul L. Carruthers, 145 Montclair avenue, forfeited a $115 bond for drunken driving when he failed to appear in Mayor Gordon's court Monday at 7 p. m. He was arrested on North Court street Saturday night.

SERIES OF FIRES CAUSES TROUBLE IN OSLO REGION

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The outbreak of a series of mysterious fires is worrying the Nazi-dominated rulers of Norway, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by CBS.

"An appeal has been broadcast to the Norwegian people to combat the fire danger," said BBC.

"The (Norwegian) broadcast revealed that since the new year the value of property damaged by fire amounts to 300,000 pounds ($1,250,000).

"The police are investigating the fires which occurred in Oslo on the day Quisling (Vidkun Quisling, president-premier of Norway) became president, and other fires which destroyed material seized by the Germans," said BBC.

In the same broadcast BBC said that Nazi authorities in Paris have ordered shot, one man for possessing arms and another on a charge of spying.

PERKINS READY TO LEAVE POST AS F.D.'S AIDE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Reports that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will soon resign were current in high administration circles today.

While rumors of her retirement have periodically spread through the capitol, the fresh reports come from more responsible sources.

With the increasing importance of Sidney Hillman in the war-labor set-up and the action of President Roosevelt in naming an unofficial "labor cabinet," Miss Perkins' influence is said to be steadily declining in administration circles.

One usually well informed source predicted the resignation of Miss Perkins within two weeks. The reason given was that she is not being consulted on major problems by the White House and she feels that her usefulness in the department after more than eight years of service has ended.

The possibility that Miss Perkins might become administrator of the wage and hour law, a new deal law for which she long fought, was seen by some administration sources. Since the wage and hour office is being moved to New York, she could return to her home state to head the administration and would avoid stepping down to a lesser post in Washington.

As the first woman cabinet member, Miss Perkins has seen the most far-reaching labor legislation in history enacted in her eight years service.

Miss Perkins, friends pointed out, could enter into private business as a labor consultant and probably earn much more than her cabinet salary.

PERSONAL TAX COLLECTION ON AT COURTHOUSE

Many Appear In County Office To Fill Out Their Returns

SOME RULES DISCLOSED

Farmer Must List Stock, Grains, Machinery In Filing Data

Collection of personal property taxes began at the court house Monday and will continue through March 31.

Employees of the auditor's office were busy all day assisting persons in filling out their tax forms. County Auditor Forrest Short said that more than fifty persons had visited his office during the morning.

Last year 2,725 persons paid personal property taxes and the figure is expected to be about the same this year.

In filling out their tax forms farmers must list their livestock at the market value and pay on 50 percent of that amount. A farmer also pays 50 percent on the market value of his grain, hay and farm machinery and is allowed $100 exemption.

The manufacturer pays 50 percent on the average monthly inventory and the merchant pays 70 percent on his average inventory. The inventory is the book rate on merchandise.

Money received from the personal property tax is allocated to the various subdivisions of the city and county for operating expenses.

DEMOCRACY AT BAY

DEMOCRACIES are notoriously inefficient. They tend to take things easy and "muddle through." In peace time especially they grow soft and careless, having clear consciences themselves and therefore being disinclined to suspect their neighbors. They also tend to grow rich, spending their money for humanitarian purposes and pleasant living. Preferring butter to guns, culture to militarism, they weaken themselves and become a fat prey for tough and predatory powers.

So it happens naturally that, when predatory nations attack them for loot and exploitation and power, the gangsters have a big advantage—for a while. The bludgeoned democracies stagger and rub their eyes and turn this way and that, and wonder what has happened to them, and what they are going to do about it, and seem to be wallowing in the pit of destruction.

Then slowly, but with growing speed, a miracle occurs. Democracy takes hold of itself, grasps the situation, organizes its forces and settles down to the job. And it finds that it has an advantage not available to the challengers and destroyers. For it has not only greater material resources, by greater resources of mind and soul, of the human qualities that count most.

INFLATION RISK

LEON Henderson, price administrator, tells labor that it would be better to pay a billion dollars more in war taxes than to get a billion dollars more in wage boosts. And he is probably right.

It is hard to hold money and prices steady in a time like this, with the world upset and values sloshing around. He explains it clearly. A billion dollars more in wages would be only that much more money in circulation. It wouldn't represent any more production and distribution of goods, because all new production now is going into war materials. The billion wage dollars poured into circulation would merely join all the other billions with which people are trying to buy consumers' goods. There would be more dollars, but no more goods, and that would merely stimulate prices, promoting a general inflation that has already started.

We need sound and steady currency now just as we need soundness and steadiness in our war policies. It is all one system of defense.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a morning of much rain and downtown early through the gloom. Pondered the morning's news on the way down and arrived at the conclusion that Hitler should be dubbed The Fearer, but not of anyone much except the United States. Looks more and more as though this has developed into OUR war. Well, we know how to fight to victory. Wish we all would take that slogan "Remember Pearl Harbor" seriously and wake up to the responsibilities of fighting an all-out war. We were asleep at Pearl Harbor and even today too many folk are asleep to the possibilities ahead of us. But we can be and will be terrible in our full fighting wrath.

Don't think much of that MacArthur for president movement. Can't the politicians quit playing politics long enough to let a real warrior accomplish a real task in the manner he knows how. MacArthur, of course, is our greatest present-day hero. If he gets off Bataan he will fight to even greater glories. But right now he is a soldier with great and terrible responsibilities, responsibilities much greater than the welfare or even fate of any political party. For one, I say leave MacArthur alone!

Some folk take the little things of war mighty seriously. Have heard some complaining of the shortage of Coca Cola. They don't know the ones hardest hit by the shortage. The employees at Frank Lynch's plant have definite orders against partaking of the soft drink, the ones who make and distribute it. Imagine that.

At noon did go to the court-house to aid registration of draftees. Heard several times that "it looks as though the government is squandering its money with such a big force of registrars." Seems as though not all were aware that the men and women who worked during the three days of registration did so as a patriotic duty and drew not one penny compensation. And some of them worked the entire three days. Others worked just when they could get away from their regular jobs.

Many youngsters were among the registrants, although most of them were in the older brackets, up to 45. Fritz Selvert, who was born and reared in Germany, signed up as did Rodney Ward, the lad from Madison township who raised prize winning cattle. However, the total

AUSTRALIAN THREATS

WASHINGTON—It is now possible to reveal some of the inside diplomatic discussions regarding the defense of Singapore.

They transpired during the visit of Winston Churchill to Washington after Pearl Harbor. While he was in Washington, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden was in Moscow; and the British and Russians had worked out a policy for concentrating on the Russian and Mediterranean fronts.

This policy, incidentally, was almost identical with that expressed in the speech of Secretary Knox, namely that Hitler was our chief enemy. The only trouble with Knox was that apparently he did not know that meanwhile the policy had been changed—or at least was supposed to have been changed.

Here's the inside story: Only a few days after Churchill arrived, the Australians got word that the Far Eastern front was to be sacrificed, and almost tore the British Empire apart.

Churchill was arguing that it was going to be impossible to defend Singapore and the Dutch East Indies; that the Pacific was a tremendous ocean; that the Japanese could rattle round in it for a long time; that it was much wiser to defeat the German Army on the Russian front and in the Mediterranean area. He contended that once the German Army was crushed it would be a simple matter to clean up on Japan.

ADMIRAL KING OBJECTS

However, Churchill ran into trouble immediately from Admiral Ernest King, forthright new commander of the U. S. Fleet. King objected vigorously, said that Dutch oil, rubber, tin would keep Japan fighting for years; warned that Japan could then put the squeeze on India, while Hitler squeezed the British Middle East from the Syrian-Turkish end.

King also referred in critical, almost scathing terms, to the Libyan campaign in North Africa; said that this was just child's play; that these barren desert wastes meant nothing even if conquered.

Blunt-spoken as he was, however, Admiral King was not half as tough as the Australians. Their minister in Washington, Richard Casey, told Churchill point-blank that Singapore would have to be defended. He even went to the extreme length of warning that Australian troops would be yanked out of the Near East if the British Government did not send reinforcements to Singapore.

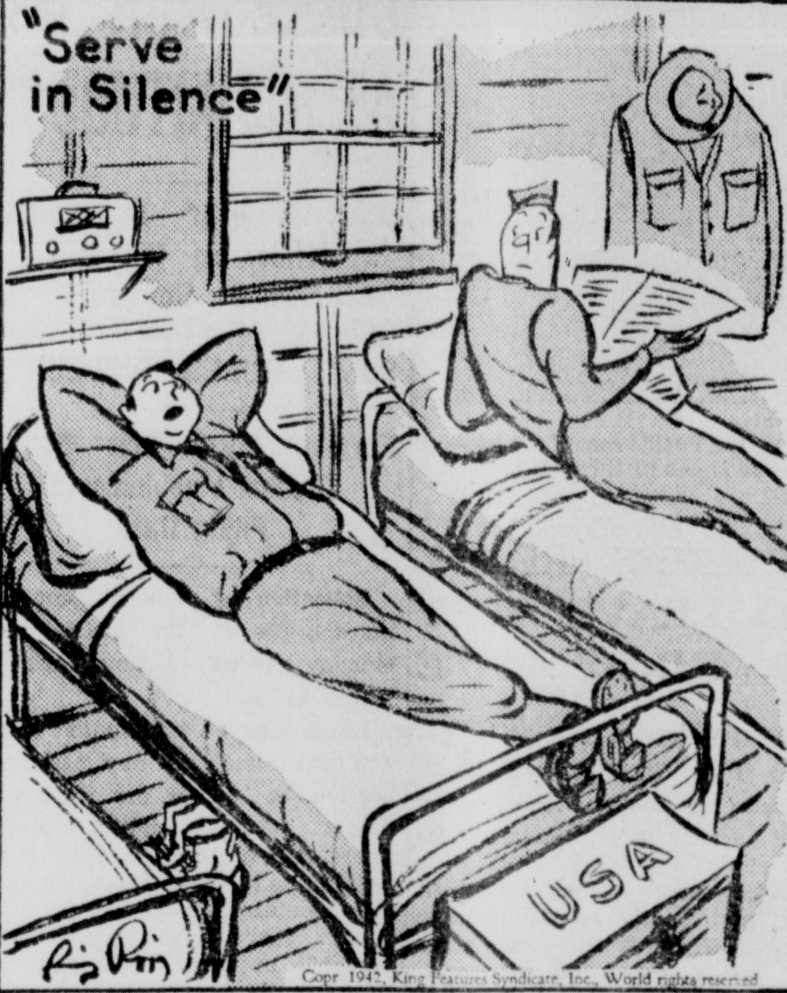

Furthermore, the Australian Prime Minister even went to the extent of suggesting that if London was going to desert the Australian people by not defending Singapore, it would be perfectly possible for the Australian Government to

Brushing Teeth the Chief Factor in Mouth Hygiene

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM coming to believe that fifty percent of the dentist's duties are to teach people how to brush their teeth. There is plenty of field for this sort of missionary work because not one in five hundred people knows how to perform this simple act of daily routine.

It certainly heads the list of the factors in mouth hygiene. Proper diet is important; regular visits to a dentist are important; but most important also is the mouth hygiene of the daily toothbrush drill that you do yourself.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I know a man, who, seven years ago, expected to lose all his teeth by this time. Every morning when he did his brushing, some blood would come from his gums. As a consequence, he used an old, soft, many toothbrush and got every harm. His dentist took him in hand and taught him how to brush his teeth with a small and firm toothbrush, get into the gum margin, toughen up the gums, and now he can't make his gums bleed even with the hardest toothbrush.

Importance of Toothbrush

The toothbrush is more important than the tooth powder, and the most important part of the toothbrush is that it should be small—small enough to get every place in the mouth. The real point in proper toothbrushing is a regular order. You should go down the teeth as you paint a picket fence, starting in one side of the upper jaw, and coming clear around in front, and then going to the back until you have reached your starting point; then same with the lower jaw.

The bristles of the brush should be placed against the teeth so as to enter all the crevices where food may stay and decompose, and it should also be placed against the tooth-gum margin with a firm pressure so that the bristles go straight into the brushed area. It should be jiggled with a slight rotary motion against each tooth crevice, front and back, above and below.

Softening Gums

Dental cavities and decay on the surface of the tooth are an easy thing to fix, but the great danger to most adult mouths is retraction of the gum, softening of the gum, and beginning of pyorrhea and this can be improved only by rigorous and methodical toothbrushing as described above.

Use of the toothbrush: the use of two brushes, one in the morning, and one in the evening will permit each to dry thoroughly before being used again, and will prolong the life of each brush. Do not use hot water on a brush; clean with full force of cold water on the brush, forcing out imbedded particles. Allow to dry in clean open air, preferably in sunlight. When a brush is new, and weekly thereafter, cover wetted bristles heavily with salt, leaving overnight. A brush should be discarded as soon as it becomes soft or matted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. P. G.: Is bathing in sulphur beneficial in cleansing the blood and skin?

Answer: Sulphur has no effect on the blood in any way. Used locally on the skin, it is a stimulant.

JUDGING by the lunar transits this should be a very lively and enterprising day, with initiative, enthusiasm for new projects probably inspired by bold and original ideas. Innovations, novelty, strange slants on current problems may engage the attention, but this out-of-the-ordinary activity may incite enmity, antagonism and lack of support from superiors, employers, public bodies or major organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of surprising advantages, with new and original propositions, born of independent, revolutionary, even spectacular ideas which must be pushed by personal initiative, courage and determination, since little encouragement will come from orthodox, public or established sources. CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"TAY—stop," Molla cried, swinging him around by the shoulder. "You mustn't walk out like that, thinking those things. Nell is not trying to be a hero. It's just that this means so much and he has everything worked out to the final detail. I'm sure if you could be of any aid he would be only too glad to ask you. So would I."

There was a slight flicker at the corners of his mouth. "I guess you can still weave some sort of spell over me regardless of what has happened." He gave her a long look, as though searching for something he didn't see, something at which he might grab as a drowning man clutches at a straw.

But Molla took hold of herself firmly. There must not be a reply to his look, she told herself. She took him by the arm and led him back to the others. Silently Tay shoved his hand out toward Nell. "I'm pretty damned sure I didn't know what I was saying and I didn't give me for being a dope. But I did want to help."

Nell grinned as he grasped Tay's hand. "Forget it—and on second thought, maybe you can give us a lift. We've got three guards from the experimental lab. They won't object to a fourth if you can dig up a union card in a hurry."

"Sure—local anesthesia 1-2-3," Tay gagged.

"However," Nell said, "you'll have to make a very quiet exit some time before 1 o'clock. Circle around the back of the house and join the boys at the entrance to the Crane place about 300 yards down the road. They can command a full view of every direction from there. Be careful, though, and be sure to announce yourself or you might get shot."

Nell looked at his watch. "It's almost midnight. The place probably is being watched now, so we'll turn out all the lights as though we've gone to bed."

They went to their respective rooms. After a while Nell went to a drawer and took out a snub-nosed automatic. He slipped it into his jacket pocket and went downstairs, got into his overcoat, looked at his watch again and eased out the back door.

It was a cold, clear night, with only a sliver of moon, but the millions of stars cast a brittle, chill luster over the snow.

A few minutes later, the back door opened quietly again and Tay slipped out. From the shadows of a tree Nell watched him disappear beyond the garden in the back.

Nell made his way cautiously to the front of the house, taking advantage of every shadow. He squatted in a depression near the stone wall that enclosed the front of the estate, and waited. He didn't mind the cold as he watched the house, but found himself getting stiff. He stood up to stretch and as he did something swept down over his shoulder and crashed against his head just above the ear.

He had seen it coming out of the corner of his eye and tried to duck, but it was too late. A million blazing lights exploded before Nell's eyes and then there was oblivion. He sagged forward, grotesquely, face down in the snow.

Molla paced her darkened room silently. It seemed her heart was thumping so crazily that it could be heard in any room of the house. When the luminous hands of the clock on the dresser showed 2:25 she opened her door and went downstairs.

Her palms were moist as she stood in front of the door. There was no personal danger to herself, but the full import of what was happening raced through her mind.

At exactly 2:30 she unlocked the front door. There was a slight click as the key turned and then, even before she could draw back, someone slithered into the room.

"Silence," a voice hissed. Molla froze. It was a man. He flashed a tiny pin point of light into her face. Beyond the light she could make out a man's vague outline, but that was all.

"You have a coat down here?" the man whispered.

Molla shook her head dumbly. The man turned to look at the closet door behind him and then Molla saw the gun in his hand. She was certain it wasn't Kurt himself. He opened the door, yanked out a man's overcoat and tossed it out to her. "Put this on and come with me," he ordered.

"But where are we going," she whispered. "The safe—what about that?"

"Never mind that," he snapped. She felt something hard pressed into her back. The door opened and they stepped out.

"This way," he took her by the hand and led her swiftly to the side of the house and then down a path through some shrubbery to the gate. Molla saw a sedan parked on the side of the road a few yards away. The man hustled her toward the car.

"Get in," he ordered as someone inside opened the rear door.

He shoved her roughly. Molla climbed into the car and found herself between two men. They were silent, didn't so much as give her more than a cursory glance.

The driver turned around and she saw it was Kurt Wilhelm. Even in the dark she could see the tight smile on his face.

"So, my beautiful little fox—you would be clever."

Another man sagged, rather than sat, next to him. The man who had led her out of the house hurried around the car and got in front on the other side.

"Good, Otto, very good."

Molla stared at the shape between Kurt and the man called Otto. There was something familiar, even to the drooped shoulders. Then when the car lurched forward in low gear his head rolled back against the rear of the seat.

Molla let out a little cry. It was Nell.

"Kurt, what have you done to him?" she said.

Kurt replied without taking his eyes off the road ahead of him. "We found him—shall we say—in the way. Just as soon as I looked at him I knew who he was and I guessed that all was not going to be as we had arranged, my little fox. I did not have to rack my brain too much to guess that the thing we sought no longer was in the safe. So, I decided to take the next best thing—you."

"Me? What can you do with me, Kurt? I don't know what you are talking about. As far as I know, the paper was in the safe. Where you found Nell Lundquist I do not know."

"Do not try to profess innocence. It is no use," Kurt told her softly.

"Where are you taking me?"

The man named Otto turned around. "Ask no more questions, please."

Molla sank back in her seat and stared at Nell's rolling head. She reached out involuntarily and touched him. She felt something sticky and she knew it was blood. The thought came to her that they had killed him. She grew panicky, and wanted to cry out, but it occurred to her that if Nell were dead they wouldn't bother with his body.

No, he was only hurt. Molla looked out of the windows on both sides to see if she could recognize any of the surroundings. She turned around. She thought she saw the headlights of a car far in the rear, but when they went down a slight incline the lights disappeared.

Gradually, in the distance she saw the lights of New York rising higher in the sky. A short while later they crossed the Tri-borough bridge. One of the men beside her in the rear took out a black piece of cloth. "You can have your choice," he said. Either close your eyes as though you were asleep or we will have to use this."

Molla needed no great urging to close her eyes. She was weary and shaken. She covered her face with her hands and tried to blot out everything that had happened.

DEMOCRACY AT BAY

DEMOCRACIES are notoriously inefficient. They tend to take things easy and "muddle through." In peace time especially they grow soft and careless, having clear consciences themselves and therefore being disinclined to suspect their neighbors. They also tend to grow rich, spending their money for humanitarian purposes and pleasant living. Preferring butter to guns, culture to militarism, they weaken themselves and become a fat prey for tough and predatory powers.

So it happens naturally that, when predatory nations attack them for loot and exploitation and power, the gangsters have a big advantage—for a while. The bludgeoned democracies stagger and rub their eyes and turn this way and that, and wonder what has happened to them, and what they are going to do about it, and seem to be wallowing in the pit of destruction.

Then slowly, but with growing speed, a miracle occurs. Democracy takes hold of itself, grasps the situation, organizes its forces and settles down to the job. And it finds that it has an advantage not available to the challengers and destroyers. For it has not only greater material resources, by greater resources of mind and soul, of the human qualities that count most.

We are entering this phase of the struggle now.

You should go down the teeth as you paint a picket fence, starting in one side of the upper jaw, and coming clear around in front, and then going to the back until you have reached your starting point; then same with the lower jaw.

The bristles of the brush should be placed against the teeth so as to enter all the crevices where food may stay and decompose, and it should also be placed against the tooth-gum margin with a firm pressure so that the bristles go straight into the brushed area. It should be flogged with a slight rotary motion against each tooth crevice, front and back, above and below.

Softening Gums

Dental cavities and decay on the surface of the teeth are an easy thing to fix, but the great danger to most adult mouths is retraction of the gum, softening of the gum, and beginning of pyorrhea and this can be improved only by rigorous and methodical toothbrushing as described above.

Use of the toothbrush: the use of two brushes, one in the morning, and one in the evening will permit each to dry thoroughly before being used again, and will prolong the life of each brush. Do not use hot water on a brush; clean with full force of cold water on the brush, forcing out imbedded particles. Allow to dry in clean open air, preferably in sunlight. When a brush is new, and weekly thereafter, cover wetted bristles heavily with salt, leaving overnight. A brush should be discarded as soon as it becomes soft or matted.

JUDGING by the lunar transits this should be a very lively and enterprising day, with initiative, enthusiasm for new projects probably inspired by bold and original ideas. Innovations, novelty, strange stunts on current problems may engage the attention, but this out-of-the-ordinary activity may incite enmity, antagonism and lack of support from superiors, employers, public bodies or major organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of surprising advantages, with new and original propositions, born of independent, revolutionary, even spectacular ideas which must be pushed by personal initiative, courage and determination, since little encouragement will come from orthodox, public or established sources. Old friends or relatives may be more sympathetic.

A child born on this day while being sound and logical may have some startling ideas out of customary grooves, which may arouse opposition from influential sources.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"TAY—stop," Molla cried, swinging him around by the shoulder. "You mustn't walk out like that, thinking those things. Neil is not trying to be a hero. It's just that this means so much and he has everything worked out to the final detail. I'm sure if you could be of any aid he would be only too glad to ask you. So would I."

There was a slight flicker at the corners of his mouth. "I guess you can still weave some sort of spell over me regardless of what has happened." He gave her a long look, as though searching for something he didn't see, something at which he might grab as a drowning man clutches at a straw.

But Molla took hold of herself firmly. There must not be a reply to his look, she told herself. She took him by the arm and led him back to the others. Silently Tay shoved his hand out toward Neil. "I'm pretty darned sure I didn't know what I was saying and forgive me for being a dope. But I did want to help."

Neil grinned as he grasped Tay's hand. "Forget it—and a second thought, maybe you can give me a lift. We've got three guards from the experimental lab. They won't object to a fourth if you can dig up a union card in a hurry."

"Sure—local anesthesia 1-2-3," Tay gagged.

"However," Neil said, "you'll have to make a very quiet exit some time before 1 o'clock. Circle around the back of the house and join the boys at the entrance to the Crane place about 300 yards down the road. They can command a full view of every direction from there. Be careful, though, and be sure to announce yourself or you might get shot."

Neil looked at his watch. "It's almost midnight. The place probably is being watched now, so we'll turn out all the lights as though we've gone to bed."

They went to their respective rooms. After a while Neil went to a drawer and took out a snub-nosed automatic. He slipped it into his jacket pocket and went downstairs, got into his overcoat, looked at his watch again and eased out the back door.

It was a cold, clear night, with only a sliver of moon, but the millions of stars cast a brittle, chilly luster over the snow.

A few minutes later, the back door opened quietly again and Tay slipped out. From the shadows of a tree Neil watched him disappear beyond the garden in the back yard.

Neil made his way cautiously to the front of the house, taking advantage of every shadow. He squatted in a depression near the stone wall that enclosed the front of the estate, and waited. He didn't mind the cold as he watched the house, but found himself getting stiff. He stood up to stretch and as he did something swept down over his shoulder and crashed against his head just above the ear.

He had seen it coming out of the corner of his eye and tried to duck, but it was too late. A million blazing lights exploded before Neil's eyes and then there was oblivion. He sagged forward, grotesquely, face down in the snow.

Molla paced her darkened room silently. It seemed her heart was thumping so crazily that it could be heard in any room of the house. When the luminous hands of the clock on the dresser showed 2:25 she opened her door and went downstairs.

Her palms were moist as she stood in front of the door. There was no personal danger to herself, but the full import of what was happening raced through her mind.

At exactly 2:30 she unlocked the front door. There was a slight click as the key turned and then, even before she could draw back, someone slithered into the room.

"Silence," a voice hissed. Molla froze. It was a man. He flashed a tiny pin point of light into her face. Beyond the light she could make out a man's vague outline, but that was all.

"You have a coat down here?" the man whispered.

Molla shook her head dumbly. The man turned to look at the closet door behind him and then Molla saw the gun in his hand. She was certain it wasn't Kurt himself. He opened the door, yanked out a man's overcoat and tossed it out to her. "Put this on and come with me," he ordered.

"But where are we going," she whispered. "The safe—what about that?"

"Never mind that," he snapped. She felt something hard pressed into her back. The door opened and they stepped out.

"This way," He took her by the hand and led her swiftly to the side of the house and then down a path through some shrubbery to the gate. Molla saw a sedan parked on the side of the road a few yards away. The man hustled her toward the car.

"Get in," he ordered as someone inside opened the rear door. He shoved her roughly. Molla climbed into the car and found herself between two men. They were silent, didn't so much as give her more than a cursory glance.

The driver turned around and she saw it was Kurt Wilhelm. Even in the dark she could see the tight smile on his face.

"So, my beautiful little fox—you would be clever." Another man sagged, rather than sat, next to him. The man who had led her out of the house hurried around the car and got in front on the other side.

"Good, Otto, very good."

Molla stared at the shape between Kurt and the man called Otto. There was something familiar, even to the drooped shoulders. Then when the car lurched forward in low gear his head rolled back against the rear of the seat.

Molla let out a little cry. It was Neil.

"Kurt, what have you done to him?" she said.

Kurt replied without taking his eyes off the road ahead of him. "We found him—shall we say—in the way. Just as soon as I looked at him I knew who he was and I guessed that all was not going to be as we had arranged, my little fox. I did not have to rack my brain too much to guess that the thing we sought no longer was in the safe. So, I decided to take the next best thing—YOU."

"Me? What can you do with me, Kurt? I don't know what you are talking about. As far as I know, the paper was in the safe. Where you found Neil Lundquist I do not know."

"Do not try to profess innocence. It is no use," Kurt told her softly. "Where are you taking me?" The man named Otto turned around. "Ask me more questions, please."

Molla sank back in her seat and stared at Neil's rolling head. She reached out involuntarily and touched him. She felt something sticky and she knew it was blood. The thought came to her that they had killed him. She grew panicky and wanted to cry out, but it occurred to her that if Neil were dead they wouldn't bother with his body.

No, he was only hurt. Molla looked out of the windows on both sides to see if she could recognize any of the surroundings. She turned around. She thought she saw the headlights of a car far in the rear, but when they went down a slight incline the lights disappeared.

Gradually, in the distance she saw the lights of New York rising higher in the sky. A short while later they crossed the Tri-borough bridge. One of the men beside her in the rear took out a black piece of cloth. "You can have your choice," he said. Either close your eyes as though you were asleep or we will have to use this."

Molla needed no great urging to close her eyes. She was weary and shaken. She covered her face with her hands and tried to blot out everything that had happened.

Monday Club Hears Trio Of Interesting Papers

Donations Made To Worthy Causes By Group

Members of the Monday club voted donations of $5 to the Girl Scouts and $1 to the Penny Art and during the Monday meeting in the library trustees' room. Memorial hall. Mrs. Tom Renick, president, conducted the session and read the poem, "In Memoriam," in memory of Mrs. Charles Lewis, a member of the club for many years.

A committee on resolutions to take action in the death of Mrs. Lewis was appointed by the president. Miss Emily D. Yates, chairman, Mrs. Clark Will and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke comprise the group.

The very interesting and informative program of the Art and Industrial Art division was presented by Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer. "The Story of the Red Rose," by Mrs. G. D. Phillips, concerned the development of early American glass, beginning with the coming of eight Dutch and Polish glass makers in 1608 to teach colonists the art of glass making.

Mrs. Phillips mentioned Wistar, Stiegel and the Boston and Sandwich Glass Co. as outstanding names in the account of early American glass. From these were given blown glass, the first tumblers made by pressing glass in a mold, and the cup-platters which were much in use in colonial America. The speaker said also that "The Story of the Red Rose" was from the life of Stiegel.

Mrs. R. R. Bales' paper was entitled "The Porridge Bowl and Pewter." An interesting development in her paper was the fact that for the most part it was about hooked rugs, "The Porridge Bowl" being the name of a rug design described as "too gay to be seemly," but like all banned things, cropped out here and there. Mrs. Bales told of hooked rugs being first used from necessity, later finding their way into the homes of the wealthy, and after an apparent lapse into what seemed oblivion for many years, they are now being eagerly collected by Americans. Originally hooked rugs came from England about 100 years ago and were used as hearth rugs. Mrs. Bales mentioned that makers of these rugs show their personality in the patterns and coloring.

Pewter was described as an alloy of pewter and tin, used by the middle class, hence, the subjects of the hooked rugs and pewter go hand in hand, according to Mrs. Bales.

"The Nine Willards who made Clocks" was the subject of Mrs. Daniel Pfoutz's paper. She mentioned Simon and Aaron as the most famous of this family, and traced interesting details of their inventions and patents.

She told of the astronomical clock which Simon Willard Jr. invented while at West Point and which is still in use at Harvard university. To the credit of the Willards goes the invention of the alarm clock in 1819 and also the revolving clock used in light-houses.

Roasts cooked by TAPPAN'S low temperature method shrink far less and retain more of their natural juices which carry flavor. Even less expensive meats are as tender, as more costly cuts roasted by old-fashioned high temperature methods. And you'll save valuable vitamins and mineral salts (flavor) in your vegetables, too, with TAPPAN'S Mighty-Mite Burner that cooks the "waterless" way.

Monday Club Hears Trio Of Interesting Papers

Donations Made To Worthy Causes By Group

Members of the Monday club voted donations of $5 to the Girl Scouts and $1 to the Penny Art and during the Monday meeting in the library trustees' room, Memorial hall. Mrs. Tom Renick, president, conducted the session and read the poem, "In Memoriam," in memory of Mrs. Charles Lewis, a member of the club for many years.

A committee on resolutions to take action in the death of Mrs. Lewis was appointed by the president. Miss Emily D. Yates, chairman, Mrs. Clark Will and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke comprise the group.

The very interesting and informative program of the Art and Industrial Art division was presented by Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, "The Story of the Red Rose," by Mrs. G. D. Phillips, concerned the development of early American glass, beginning with the coming of eight Dutch and Polish glass makers in 1608 to teach colonists the art of glass making.

Mrs. Phillips mentioned Wistar, Stiegel and the Boston and Sandwich Glass Co. as outstanding names in the account of early American glass. From these were given blown glass, the first tumblers made by pressing glass in a mold, and the cup-plates which were much in use in colonial America. The speaker said also that "The Story of the Red Rose" was from the life of Stiegel.

Mrs. R. R. Bales' paper was entitled "The Porridge Bowl and Pewter." An interesting development in her paper was the fact that for the most part it was about hooked rugs, "The Porridge Bowl" being the name of a rug design described as "too gay to be really hooked."

hooked out here and there. Mrs. Bales told of hooked rugs being first used from necessity, later finding their way into the homes of the wealthy, and after an apparent lapse into what seemed oblivion for many years, they are now being eagerly collected by Americans. Originally hooked rugs came from England about 100 years ago and were used as hearth rugs. Mrs. Bales mentioned that makers of these rugs show their personality in the patterns and coloring.

Pewter was described as an alloy of pewter and tin, used by the middle class, hence the subjects of the hooked rugs and pewter go hand in hand, according to Mrs. Bales.

"The Nine Willards who made Clocks" was the subject of Mrs. Daniel Proulx's paper. She mentioned Simon and Aaron as the most famous of this family, and traced interesting details of their inventions and patents.

She told of the astronomical clock which Simon Willard Jr. invented while at West Point and which is still in use at Harvard university. To the credit of the Willards goes the invention of the alarm clock in 1819 and also the revolving clock used in light-houses.

SECRET PAPERS GIVE EVIDENCE IN SPY TRIAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—Nazi consulate papers, retrieved from a blazing furnace by a quick-witted engineer, furnished important evidence today as the trial of six defendants accused of being German spies continued in federal court.

The papers were tossed into the furnace by Walter Edward Morrissey, building engineer, under the eyes of consular employees. When the watchers' backs were turned, Morrissey pulled them back and later turned them over to agents of the FBI.

The federal agents pieced the fragments together and found a message which they traced to the German government radio station. It was addressed to Paul T. Borchardt, one of the defendants. Borchardt was instructed "in manner you deem best to burn letter from Robert dated February 20, 1941."

Lucy Boehmler, who has confessed and testified as a government witness, has said that she was told Borchardt should be referred to as "Robert." In that case FBI men said if the "Robert" mentioned in the Nazi dispatch was Borchardt, it may have been an order to destroy some report he had been instructed to write on February 20.

TWO OF PHILADELPHIA'S HURLERS SIGN FOR 1942

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17—Connie Mack's pitching staff for 1942 was intact today with the signing of Bill Beckman and Jack Hallet, husky young right-handers.

Dick Siebert, slugging first baseman, however, reported from his St. Paul home that if Mack's last contract was the final word he would rather quit baseball than sign up for the new season.

The law of averages says that if every person ever born on this earth had played bridge 24 hours a day for his entire life time, in all that time four perfect bridge hands would never have been dealt at the same table.

10:15 p. m. He will be heard with the Alfred Wallenstein orchestra and Deems Taylor as narrator. Music includes "Romance in G Major—Opus 4" of Beethoven; "Coriolanus Overture" by Beethoven and "Romance in F Major, Opus 30" also by Beethoven.

RADIO BRIEFS
As a result of her recent guest appearance with Eddie Cantor in his radio adaptation of the smash hit musical comedy, "Banjo Eyes," June Clyde—who plays Eddie's wife in it—is discussing a summer commercial program with interested sponsors. June, a newcomer to the New York theatrical and radio scene, shares vocal assignments in the comedian's Broadway show.

Jim Tranter, actor heard on "Mr. District Attorney," commutes from New York to Buffalo each week where he is producing and acting in a half-hour serial called "Curtain Time." Incidentally, his brother Don is a Buffalo radio editor.

Brian Donlevy, a recent guest on Kate Smith's midday commentary program, revealed to the songstress that he has been a "Kate Smith Speaks" fan since the series began three years ago. The film star explained that he caught the broadcast in Hollywood at 9 a. m. while driving to the studio lot.

Weatherly, 1941 holdout, was suspended twice on various counts during the last playing season.

Outstanding among those who haven't mailed in contracts as yet is burly Jeff Heath, outfielder who batted .340 last year. He returned his first contract unsigned and the Tribe front office sent him another calling for a raise in pay, a sure indication that the management wants—and needs—the slugger to hold down right field territory.

Heath's is the only salary being upped, incidentally.

LAMBERT GIVEN HONORS FOR COACHING SUCCESS

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 17—Ward (Peggy) Lambert, coach of the Purdue basketball team for a quarter century, had concrete tokens today of the esteem in which he is held by the students and fans.

Between halves of last night's game between Purdue and Wisconsin, he was presented with a blanket emblazoned with silver basketballs in each corner. Above the name "Ward Lambert" were designed a king's crown and numerals of the 11 years in which Lambert-coached teams have won or shared in the Big Ten basketball championship.

He also received a wrist watch. Many former players and other alumni attended the game, won by Purdue 40 to 34.

SAILORS DEFEAT HUSKIES IN 58 TO 42 CAGE TILT

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 17—The Great Lakes naval training station basketball team had another victory to jot down in the log book today—the team's 24th out of 28 stars—following their 58 to 42 triumph over the University of Washington Huskies.

Bob Callahan, former Detroit all-American, scored 24 points. He was given a great ovation for his work, and his fast, deadly shooting was something for westerners to see.

DODGERS TAKE LEAD IN AIDING DEFENSE TASK

MacPhail Sets Up Program To Aid War Cause; Dolph Camilli Signs

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Feb. 17—Brooklyn's fabulous "bums" were first in their league pennant race after a terrific fight last summer and today they're first again in the much more important fight to preserve national unity and aid national defense. The "bums" went right to the head of the parade today when they announced, through their President Larry MacPhail, a four point plan under which the Dodgers will operate during the war; a plan calculated to swell the treasury of all service relief societies, encourage sale of defense bonds and stamps and use every means at the organization's command to entertain and encourage the morale of the boys in the colors of their country.

Where other baseball people have talked—the bums have acted. And it is sincerely hoped other big clubs will not waste any time in following the example of the National league champions.

Here's the four point program titled "the Dodgers and the War" as explained by MacPhail.

(1) The entire receipts of one day at home (date to be selected later) admissions, profits from the concessions, sale of scorecards etc., to be turned over to a service relief society or group of societies. Also the Dodgers' entire percentage of the receipts for one game to be played on the road.

(2) Every individual in the employ of the club will accept ten percent of his salary in defense bonds or stamps from MacPhail down to the caretakers at Ebbetts field. "If they don't agree," said Mr. MacPhail, "we will not open the gates this season." P. S. they will agree.

Publicity Available
Under this point the fiery leader emphasized that all publicity and advertising media at the club's command, the radio, billboards, scorecards, public address system etc. will be available at any time for any plans to stimulate the sale of defense bonds.

(3) The club will give up three days of its schedule along with the rest of the league, to enable its players to participate in the annual all-star game, to be held in New York this season, and in the second all-star game which will be played 24 hours later, probably in Cleveland.

(4) Plans are almost completed whereby at least 150,000 men in uniform will be invited to Ebbetts field during the season, as guests of the Dodgers, and all coaches, scouts and players on the squad will be available, at any time, for any services requested by athletic officers or health officials of the Army, Navy or civilian defense organizations. MacPhail added that the ten farm clubs of the Brooklyn chain will adopt a similar program.

With this as a model it is believed the other major clubs will soon fall in line with a similar plan or with one that might prove even more valuable. The bums have made the first move, however, and baseball fans here greeted it with an enthusiastic vote of approval.

Shortly after revealing his plans, MacPhail, very happy over the success of his negotiations with key members of the bums thus far this hot stove league season, flew to Miami. Yesterday the Red signed First Sacker Dolf Camilli, always one of his main hold-out problems, and Pitcher Curt Davis.

Camilli is believed to have received a $5,000 increase or $20,000 for signing. He received $15,000 last year when he led the National league in homers with 34 and in runs batted in with 120, though batting only .285. Dolf came here from his California ranch, conferred briefly with MacPhail at a local hotel and accepted. Davis did likewise.

HARBERT VICTOR
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 17—Melvin (Chick) Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., by defeating Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., in the 18-hole play-off, today held the $1,000 first prize money for the sixteenth Texas open golf championship.

KIWANIANS HEAR PRESIDENT TALK OF DEFENSE JOB

Nine members of the Circleville Kiwanis club attended a meeting in Columbus Monday to hear an address by Charles Donley of Pittsburgh, international Kiwanis president. Included in the delegation were Herschel Hill, president; Harold Limback, Irvin Leist, John H. Dunlap Sr., Renick W. Dunlap, Dwight Steele, Leonard Snodgrass, Carl Bennett and Homer Reber.

Mr. Donley declared that the programs of the leading service clubs are designed so that they may be of much service in assisting in the government national defense effort. He pointed out that there is no need for civilian defense officials to set up new organizations in an effort to get certain work done, since the programs of the service clubs were so adapted to serve many of these purposes. He discussed the service club's importance in the effort to keep civilian morale at a high peak.

Monday evening's meeting of the local club was turned into a general discussion with members devoting much time to the possibility of conducting another Policeman's and Fireman's ball. The question was put in the hands of a committee which will contact police and firemen.

Next week Dr. Felix Held of Ohio State university will appear before the club, Kiwanians entertaining their wives at a regular 'Ladies Night' session. A program of interest is being prepared.

Sugar Rationing May Start Shortly After March 7; Books Are Prepared

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — The Office for Emergency Management revealed today that 190,000,000 war ration books No. 1 — enough to blanket Berlin — will be printed by March 7, and officials predicted that the registration day for every man, woman and child in the nation under the sugar rationing program will be fixed shortly thereafter.

Officials explained that they could not estimate the day of registration exactly because it would take some time — one, two, perhaps three weeks — to instruct school teachers and others who will handle distribution of the sugar rationing books to consumers.

It was pointed out that the sugar rationing program gave the government printing office, which is used to handling gigantic tasks, the biggest job in its history, but that it expects to have three consumer forms ready for distribution March 7, only 30 days after it received "the go-ahead signal" February 7.

The OEM explained that the first "copy" under the sugar rationing program to reach the GPO was the ration book itself, plus 200,000,000 consumer application forms and 200,000,000 "instructions to consumers."

To emphasize the size of the

ROLLAND COEY, 80, DIES AT HOME IN HALLSVILLE

Rolland E. Coey, 80, died Monday at 4:45 p. m. at his home in Hallsville. Complications after a year's illness caused death.

He was born in Colerain township, Ross county, October 12, 1861, a son of William and Lucinda Strawser Coey. His wife, Lida Jane Harrel Coey, preceded him in death.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Mae Pontius of Hallsville and Miss Ada Coey of the home, and a grandson.

The funeral will be Thursday at 3 p. m. in the Hallsville United Brethren church with burial in the village cemetery at Loring E. Hill, Kingston.

printing job, the OEM quoted figures to show that the ration books stacked up would form a tower 15 miles high, and the consumer forms laid end to end would encircle the world at the equator, making a strip of paper 31,660 miles in length.

"Placed in a square," the OEM added, "the ration books would blanket metropolitan Berlin."

"And that, of course, is the big idea."

The OEM's story about the tremendous printing job involved in the sugar program gave out a veiled hint of more rationing programs to come. In a paragraph about the statistics, it asserted that the printing project "may turn out to have been the pilot job for still bigger jobs to come."

withdraw from the War and make a separate peace with Germany.

Faced with this double-barreled barrage from both the Australians and the U. S. Navy, the British and Russians yielded. More reinforcements for the Far East were decided upon. By that time, however, it was late to send heavy reinforcements. And the inside fact is that modern fighting planes did not arrive in Singapore until after Churchill returned to London — or about one month before Japan's all-out attack on the island.

Note: This inside history of Singapore is going to contribute to far closer ties between the U.S.A. and Australia.

MacARTHUR FOR PRESIDENT

Representative Lane Powers, Republican of New Jersey, launched a presidential boom for General MacArthur on Capitol Hill the other day, although it must be said he chose a strange place to do it—a closed-door meeting of the House Appropriations committee.

The committee was considering the new $23-billion Army appropriation, to provide thousands of additional tanks and other equipment for the war against the Axis. One of the first topics of discussion hinged on how much of the huge war fund could go for needed supplies in the Philippines.

This was Powers' cue.

"Thank you, gentlemen," he said with a bow. "While we're on this subject, I wish to announce that my candidate for the presidency in 1944 is that great soldier, famous American and outstanding Republican, General Douglas MacArthur."

Democratic committee members applauded as vociferously as the Republicans. Later, Powers was asked why he picked a closed-door meeting to sound the keynote for MacArthur.

"That's part of the strategy," grinned the popular New Jerseyite. "Do you think I want to jinx the man by coming out for him publicly at this early date?"

Note: Among the nation's outstanding military heroes who have been elected president were: George Washington, Andrew Jackson, William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Ulysses S. Grant and Theodore Roosevelt. On the other hand, General McClellan failed in his race against Lincoln; General Leonard Wood failed after the World War; Admiral Dewey was talked about but made no real attempt after the Spanish-American war; and General Winfield Scott was defeated after the Mexican war of 1848.

MAIL BAG

M.L.S., Washington—The word "antimacassar" is derived from Macassar in the Dutch East Indies, which used to ship a lot of hair oil to Britain and the United States. The hair oil soiled the backs of chairs and sofas, so tidy housewives invented the "antimacassar," a white doily to protect the furniture. . . . J.S.V., Seattle —It was "House Resolution 37" of the California state legislature which politely asked the Emperor of Japan "not to take any action or do anything drastic until . . . the legislature may make up its collective mind." The resolution was introduced by liberal assemblymen in disgust at slowness in passing "appropriations to continue the State Guard." The legislature actually passed the resolution, apparently unaware of its content, and adjourned for the Christmas holidays leaving the State Guard up in the air. B.E.W., Baltimore, Md. — The women's auxiliary corps of the Army has nothing to do with Civilian Defense. If created, it will invite enlistment of women between 20 and 45, to serve with the Army, with rank, uniform, pay, full time service, and military discipline. At first, 12,200 women will be accepted.

They will be formed into companies, and one company will be attached to each large military encampment, where the members will serve as clerks, machine operators, telegraph operators, pharmacists, dieticians, hostesses, etc., and as employees, stewardesses, etc.

KIWANIANS HEAR PRESIDENT TALK OF DEFENSE JOB

Nine members of the Circleville Kiwanis club attended a meeting in Columbus Monday to hear an address by Charles Donley of Pittsburgh, international Kiwanis president. Included in the delegation were Herschel Hill, president; Harold Limback, Irvin Leist, John H. Dunlap Sr., Renick W. Dunlap, Dwight Steele, Leonard Snodgrass, Carl Bennett and Homer Reber.

Mr. Donley declared that the programs of the leading service clubs are designed so that they may be of much service in assisting in the government national defense effort. He pointed out that there is no need for civilian defense officials to set up new organizations in an effort to get certain work done, since the programs of the service clubs were so adapted to serve many of these purposes. He discussed the service club's importance in the effort to keep civilian morale at a high peak.

Monday evening's meeting of the local club was turned into a general discussion with members devoting much time to the possibility of conducting another Policeman's and Fireman's ball. The question was put in the hands of a committee which will contact police and firemen.

Next week Dr. Felix Held of Ohio State university will appear before the club, Kiwanians entertaining their wives at a regular "Ladies Night" session. A program of interest is being prepared.

Sugar Rationing May Start Shortly After March 7; Books Are Prepared

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — The Office for Emergency Management revealed today that 190,000,000 war ration books No. 1 — enough to blanket Berlin — will be printed by March 7, and officials predicted that the registration day for every man, woman and child in the nation under the sugar rationing program will be fixed shortly thereafter.

Officials explained that they could not estimate the day of registration exactly because it would take some time — one, two, perhaps three weeks — to instruct school teachers and others who will handle distribution of the sugar rationing books to consumers.

It was pointed out that the sugar rationing program gave the government printing office, which is used to handling gigantic tasks, the biggest job in its history, but that it expects to have three consumer forms ready for distribution March 7, only 50 days after it received "the go-ahead signal" February 7.

The OEM explained that the first "copy" under the sugar rationing program to reach the GPO was the ration book itself, plus 200,000,000 consumer application forms and 200,000,000 "instructions to consumers."

ROLLAND COEY, 80, DIES AT HOME IN HALLSVILLE

Rolland E. Coey, 80, died Monday at 4:45 p. m. at his home in Hallsville. Complications after a year's illness caused death.

He was born in Colerain township, Ross county, October 12, 1861, a son of William and Lucinda Strawser Coey. His wife, Lida Jane Harrel Coey, preceded him in death.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Mae Pontius of Hallsville and Miss Ada Coey of the home, and a grandson.

The funeral will be Thursday at 3 p. m. in the Hallsville United Brethren church with burial in the village cemetery by Loring E. Hill, Kingston.

printing job, the OEM quoted figures to show that the ration books stacked up would form a tower 15 miles high, and the consumer forms laid end to end would encircle the world at the equator, making a strip of paper 31,660 miles in length.

"Placed in a square," the OEM added, "the ration books would blanket metropolitan Berlin."

"And that, of course, is the big idea."

The OEM's story about the tremendous printing job involved in the sugar program gave out a veiled hint of more rationing programs to come. In a paragraph about the statistics, it asserted that the printing project "may turn out to have been the pilot job for still bigger jobs to come."

withdraw from the War and make a separate peace with Germany.

Faced with this double-barreled barrage from both the Australians and the U. S. Navy, the British and Russians yielded. More reinforcements for the Far East were decided upon. By that time, however, it was late to send heavy reinforcements. And the inside fact is that modern fighting planes did not arrive in Singapore until after Churchill returned to London — or about one month before Japan's all-out attack on the island.

Note: This inside history of Singapore is going to contribute to far closer ties between the U.S.A. and Australia.

MacARTHUR FOR PRESIDENT

Representative Lane Powers, Republican of New Jersey, launched a presidential boom for General MacArthur on Capitol Hill the other day, although it must be said he chose a strange place to do it—a closed-door meeting of the House Appropriations committee.

The committee was considering the new $23-billion Army appropriation, to provide thousands of additional tanks and other equipment for the war against the Axis. One of the first topics of discussion hinged on how much of the huge war fund could go for needed supplies in the Philippines. This was Powers' cue.

"Thank you, gentlemen," he said with a bow. "While we're on this subject, I wish to announce that my candidate for the presidency in 1944 is that great soldier, famous American and outstanding Republican, General Douglas MacArthur."

Democratic committee members applauded as vociferously as the Republicans. Later, Powers was asked why he picked a closed-door meeting to sound the keynote for MacArthur.

"That's part of the strategy," grinned the popular New Jerseyite. "Do you think I want to jinx the man by coming out for him publicly at this early date?"

On the other hand, General McClellan failed in his race against Lincoln; General Leonard Wood failed after the World War; Admiral Dewey was talked about but made no real attempt after the Spanish-American war; and General Winfield Scott was defeated after the Mexican war of 1848.

MAIL BAG

M.L.S., Washington—The word "antimacassar" is derived from Macassar in the Dutch East Indies, which used to ship a lot of hair oil to Britain and the United States. The hair oil soiled the backs of chairs and sofas, so tidy housewives invented the "antimacassar," a white doily to protect the furniture. . . . J.S.V., Seattle —It was "House Resolution 37" of the California state legislature which politely asked the Emperor of Japan "not to take any action or do anything drastic until . . . the legislature may make up its collective mind." The resolution was introduced by liberal assemblymen in disgust at slowness in passing "appropriations to continue the State Guard." The legislature actually passed the resolution, apparently unaware of its content, and adjourned for the Christmas holidays leaving the State Guard up in the air. B.E.W., Baltimore, Md. — The women's auxiliary corps of the Army has nothing to do with Civilian Defense. If created, it will invite enlistment of women between 20 and 45, to serve with the Army, with rank, uniform, pay, full time service, and military discipline. At first, 12,000 women will be accepted.

They will be formed into companies, and one company will be attached to each large military encampment, where the members will serve as clerks, machine operators, telegraph operators, pharmacists, dieticians, hostesses, theatre employees, stewardesses, etc.
